Communication Board

- Print one board for each student onto cardstock
- Laminate or place in page protector for durability
- Use for every lesson and activity to increase engagement and participation
- Additional activity
 - Print 2 copies and cut one copy into individual pictures
 - Have students glue or place the matching pictures on the second copy
 - Use the boards for a game of Bingo. Yes, every student will have the same board, but that rarely causes a problem.
 - Just print a second copy to cut apart into calling cards.

Turkey Facts

- This activity is meant to assess if students' comprehension of the story and main facts about turkeys
- If the facts pertains to a turkey, the student should glue a picture of a turkey in the blank box next to the fact.
- Great to use as a pre and post assessment
- Color and BW versions included
- Differentiate
 - For students who need more visual structure, outline the empty boxes in green if it is a turkey fact and outline the turkey pictures in green
- Options for use
 - Print on card stock and laminate
 - Add Velcro to create an independent and reusable activity

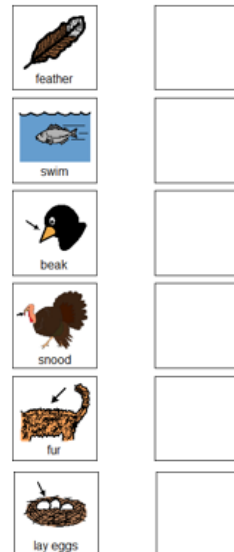

If the picture relates to a turkey, glue a picture of a turkey in the box.

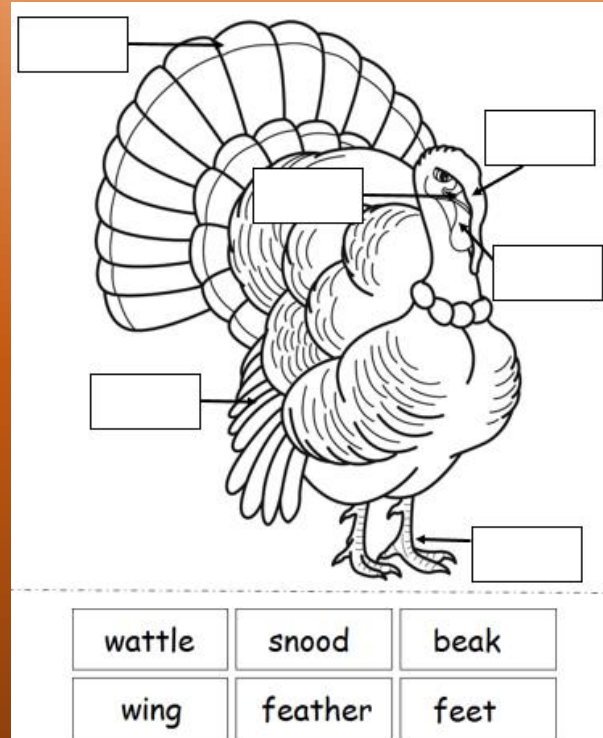

Labeling Turkey Parts

- This is used to review the major parts of a turkey.
- Students cut out labels and paste in blank boxes.
- Color when done.
- Differentiate
 - For your non-readers and students who need more visual structure, outline the empty boxes and corresponding body part label the same color.
 - Becomes a color matching task
 - To make it even more noticeable, color in the entire box rather than just outline.
 - Try doing the worksheet more than once and try to fade the amount of support you need to provide.
- Options for Use:
 - Print on card stock and color.
 - Laminate and add Velcro.
 - Becomes a reusable and independent activity.

If the picture relates to a turkey, glue a picture of a turkey in the box.
